

GARY A. FOWLER, AIA, LEED® AP

PRINCIPAL

Large scale mixed use complexes were a focus of Gary's while studying architecture at Tulane. He was attracted to TVS because of the Omni International Complex (now CNN Center) and the opportunity to work on such projects. His first assignment as a project architect at TVS was the one million square foot second phase of the Georgia World Congress Center and he has been designing large challenging projects ever since.

On November 23, 2006, the Georgia Aquarium opened in Atlanta amidst enormous anticipation and fanfare. The world's largest aquarium had been delivered in the shortest design and construction duration of any aquarium on record. Gary led the TVS studio on this landmark project from procurement through design and construction and was instrumental in pleasing a demanding client on this fast tracked project. The $290 million dollar, 550,000 square foot facility produced such excitement that annual pass sales were terminated two months after opening when over 300,000 had been sold. The facility hosted 3.6 million visitors in its first year of operation.
